

The Future, Invented Globally

Emerging markets are innovating faster than ever.

The 2025 WIPO innovation rankings, highlighted by The Economist, show that EM countries are punching far above their weight in R&D spending, patents, and high-tech exports—relative to GDP. Beyond headline-grabbers like China, India, South Korea, and Vietnam, many emerging markets have made remarkable strides in just the last decade.

This rapid rise underscores how quickly the right conditions—talent, investment, and policy—can spark a surge of innovation.
